

The fundamental difference between DROP and DISABLE is that DROP permanently removes the constraint from the table and from the data dictionary, which means it cannot be restored unless it is recreated, DISABLE temporarily deactivates the constraint while keeping its definition in the data dictionary, and it can be re-enabled later using the ENABLE command.